Welcome to Texas Vintage Shopper's Top 6 Pedestrian-Friendly Vintage & Antique Shopping Towns. You will find yourself making special memories and meeting Texas-friendly people. These Texans are as much into the conversation as they are into selling merchandise so be sure you stop and swap stories along the way.

It's not so much the destination as it is the charm of the journey!

Spend time leisurely walking these picturesque downtown areas, and find plenty of treasures along the way in the unique Mom & Pop shops.

We created this guide, especially for those avid antique and vintage lovers who enjoy spending a day meandering through and enjoying that small-town Texas atmosphere and getting off the fast track

Plan your trip and get the inside scoop on where to shop, eat and stay during your visit.

Use our trip-planning diaries at the end of this brochure so you won't miss anything and you can jot down the names of treasures found in the different shops - after all, when you visit so many, it is hard to remember which shop had those special treasures that piqued your interest, but maybe you wanted time to think about purchasing.

If you love antiques, these towns have numerous shops within walking distance for convenience.

GLADEWATER

Gladewater, Texas is a great Texas town for antiquing. It is known as the antique capital of East Texas, and with good reason. There are 12 antique shops within walking distance of one another and each shop offers a variety of unique vintage and antique merchandise.

Back in 1995, as more stores began to take up entire downtown blocks, the House of Representatives of the 74th Texas Legislature began to take notice. They named Gladewater the "Antique Capital of East Texas" on May 24th that year.

Gladewater has a revitalized downtown with weekend tranquility even during the week.

PARIS

Many U.S. cities are named after the capital of France, but only one takes the title of “The Second Largest Paris in the World.” Indeed, Paris, Texas rivals its French counterpart in impressive architecture and delicious cuisine, all along with that friendly small-town hospitality that the Lone Star State is known for. This version of Paris even has its own 65-foot-tall Eiffel Tower illuminating bright beautiful colors at night, complete with a 10-gallon red cowboy hat!

Beyond the obvious influences of its European cousin, Paris is a thriving town with 8 antique and vintage shops, an active arts scene, picturesque parks, and all sorts of fun annual events. No matter what brings you to Paris, you’re going to have a great time. Bon Voyage!
